Throw a curveball

If you thought carpets were too trad for you, think again. Add both punch and comfort to your home by sourcing a funky pattern on a cosy wool canvas. Take note from Emily Murray from The Pink House, who used this bold honeycomb design to complement the original features of this loft space by echoing the fireplace moulding, while the timeless monochrome colour scheme keeps the whole vibe thoroughly modern.

Classic touch

Give your floors a vintage look by using octagonal tiles and square insets, like the Montpellier from Karndean Designflooring's Heritage collection. This neoclassical design nods to history, but its clean lines and contemporary colourways take it firmly into 2020. Plus, unlike original Victorian tiles, luxury vinyl is hard-wearing, waterproof and easy to maintain, making it ideal for kitchens or high-traffic areas of the house.
